

Devil's certainly rebellion would be a valid description. Destruction (was not Satan God's avenging Angel?) is another. Animalistic, the Devil's bestial features is indicative of that attribute. Conniving, cunning.

Intelligent in a malevolent ~~brave~~ way. Some tales hold of the Devil's (Lucifer facet) beauty, lying, deceitful, yet bounder to a law of sorts. Honorable and honoring contracts, in his own way. Murderous and cruel.

Note that all these are human attributes placed on a concept of morality, evil. The existence of the Devil will not be debated in this manuscript.
After all, humanity placed human attributes upon the universe. It is a way of modeling and understanding these forces that surround us. However, the practicality and influence of the Devil will be addressed,